Using art as a medium, MGM Healthcare invited 32 fine art students from Stella Maris College to curate and produce a magnificent work of art that speaks for itself and echoes the message that women need to put an emphasis on their health and wellness. Each painting exemplified a different quality that women possess, such as fortitude, empathy, creativity, tolerance, dignity, gentleness, kindness, and integrity.

Dr A Jaishree Gajaraj, Senior Consultant, Obstetrics & Gynaecology, MGM VARAM, MGM Healthcare's dedicated women's super-speciality centre, spoke about the need for women to focus on maintaining their health. "Women should focus on their health as a priority, just as we do with the other aspects of our lives. In the long run, it will be beneficial to make sensible and healthy decisions. Also, educate women who have less access to information by sharing your knowledge and awareness with them. We have to empower women physically, mentally socially and the work front digitally as well".
