

Padma Seshadri
English Literature Faculty
1978 – 1998

A heritage enthusiast Padma Seshadri studied at Indraprastha College in Delhi and at the University of Leeds, and obtained her doctoral degree from the university of Madras. She has also taught at Indraprastha College, and SNTD College in Mumbai. She has authored three heritage-based books for children.

Padma Malini Sundararaghavan
English Literature Faculty
1979 – 2004

A freelance editor, writer and teacher, Padma Malini Sundararaghavan studied at Nirmala College, Coimbatore and at Stella Maris College before obtaining her doctoral degree in postcolonial fiction from the University of Madras. Her articles have been published in journals such as Literary Criterion.

In this carefully researched book on the river Kaveri, authors Padma Seshadri Padma Malini Sundararaghavan take us from the river's origin in Talakaveri to the site of the ancient port of Poompuhar. For 802 kilometres, the Kaveri river winds her way through hills, valleys, and plains, seeking to fulfill her destiny, her union with the Lord of the Sea.

Why did a Chola king dive into chasm into which Kaveri vanished? How did Kaveri set Kodagu style of draping a sari? How did a spider become a king? How did the Handsome Bridegroom of Srirangam, himself 'abducted', find a bride from another faith? Find out on this exciting journey that brings to life our rich and varied heritage.